I think that the gov't (Justice Department) should leave Microsoft alone. The employees of Microsoft should be free to innovate and sell their innovations on the free market. It is a basic requirement of man that he needs to be free. I don't see how the gov't should treat the individuals that make up Microsoft any different than anybody else. The Justice Department should try cracking down on computer piracy. That is the gov't should be going after the criminals those that initiate the use of physical force in it's different forms. The bottom line is that Microsoft has a right to earn as big of a profit as it can. Microsoft should be set free.
